A SOLDIER HAS TO KNOW HIS BEANS

A MAN in the Army has to know his beans. This is not a vague expression as any soldier who has stared hard a dozen different kinds of beans in the face at chow line will tell you. But there are also other kinds of beans that a soldier needs to know to get along.

The Army is a great, complex organized society. There are more personal demands on the personal life of the soldier because of the disciplinary nature and purpose of the society, and this is its primary contrast to civilian life. But it is still up to the individual soldier to know his beans—know his way around, what he can do and what he can't do and what he can do to climb in the ranks—just as he had to know them to get along in civilian life.

It is true that many Army customs are leftovers from a sterner era and may be unnecessary and absurd in the light of present widespread social consciousness. But it is up to the soldier to observe these customs at the same time he seeks to inform himself of the opportunities in this new society into which he has been thrust.

A couple of South Georgia boys, let us say, joined the Army several months ago, one of them as a selectee and the other as an enlisted man. The first is making $72 a month now as a staff sergeant—he wears three stripes up and one down on his sleeve—and the second is still a private getting $30 in his pay envelope.

One knew his beans and the other didn't. One knew how to ask questions about his new military society is run. He didn't mind approaching a commissioned officer—observing the proper customs—and talking with him about his chances, finding out if he could go to school to be skilled in some branch of Army administration or tactic. He found it was easy because, ordinarily the new Army officer recognizes his men as human beings and, time permitting, is willing to give a soldier in his command advice.

The other man likely got drunk the night after payday and spent the rest of the month mousing about his hard luck. He couldn't accept the fact that the Army is his new career, his new society, and it is his responsibility to adjust himself to it in view of the larger aim of the larger Army.

Now the Army, like any complex organization in civilian life that business to attend to, doesn't give promotions to those who do not display loyalty to it. But to the man who knows his beans there's plenty of opportunity to skill himself to find a spot in this new society.

Since the expansion of the new Army from a small 156,000 into 1,600,000, new schools have sprung up all designed to teach soldiers everything from cooking and baking to radio mechanics. The Air Corps alone maintains five technical schools, including the widely publicized photographic school at Lowry Field, Denver, Colorado. There is a baker's school at Fort Benning. And no longer can the criticism be justly given that a man can't rise from enlisted status to that of commissioned officer. Instituted last summer were Officer Candidate Schools in the various fighting, administrative and supply branches. For these are chosen enlisted men who have shown themselves especially qualified as leaders.

The Army has found from the recent maneuvers that there are men in the line units not qualified to be leaders of military operations and a criticism from soldiers themselves has arisen that many reserve officers lacked the proper respect for the service. Thus, while the officers' schools will train a man to be an officer in a relatively short time, the men chosen will be of a calibre that can assume responsibility.

But the important thing for the soldier to remember is that he must apply himself to his task and assert himself in the Army just as he must in civilian life if he is to climb in the ranks.

The pay for enlisted men of staff sergeant rank and lower also needs consideration, but that is another matter.

SCHOOLBOY PATROL

CHALK UP another mark in favor of the Junior Chamber of Commerce—the Jaycees—as they like to be known.

With the hearty co-operation of Superintendent J. H. Morrison and the Georgia State Patrol, a School Boy Patrol is being organized at the Statesboro City Schools.

These boy patrolmen are given the responsibility of the safety of their hundreds of schoolmates at street crossings during certain hours of the day, every school day in the year. Fair weather, foul weather they stand at designated street corners and at recess periods, before school hours and after school hours.

They go on duty when several hundred school children are hurrying home with little thoughts of street crossing dangers. It is at these times that the School Boy Patrol becomes important. The boys are carefully selected for the posts and when inducted into service they take great pride in their responsibility.

Good going, Jaycees!

FALL BRINGS SAFETY WARNINGS

ARRIVAL OF THE fall season brings numbers of warnings from the Department of Public Safety addressed to motorists and pedestrians:

1. Shorter daylight hours mean that more workers are returning home after dusk. Decreased visibility demands increased vigilance.

2. When driving "into the setting sun" on these fall days, avoid sun glare by using windshield visor or sunglasses. Don't wear sunglasses after dark, however.

Make a check on the electrical equipment of your car. Now is a good time to examine your battery, light bulbs and wiring.

4. Football season is here. Excitement and traffic congestion attend every gridiron game. Fans who drink should let someone else drive.

5. Motorists must be doubly cautious in school districts and in areas where children are going to and from school. School safety patrols, parents and teachers all warn boys and girls to avoid danger, but drivers have a responsibility too.

6. Pedestrians, remember that motorists have a harder time seeing you because of longer hours of darkness and more inclement weather. When walking on rural highways, carry a light or wear something white. In the city, watch your step from every curb.

An elderly citizen is one who can remember when it didn't matter whether a lady wore silk or cotton hose.

A woman is some one who will need new drapes to go with the upholstery she has in mind to match the drapes.

We know a good preventative for sunburn, but most folks take it off and mow the lawn in their undershirts.

There's nothing strange about traveling salesmen being good talkers, they live away from home.

Our own experience is that it is no use to tell anybody our own experience because they will never be satisfied until they get their own experience.

Sweet girl graduates are popping out of schools and colleges with sheepskins that can neither be used for table cloths nor diapers.

An optimist is the fellow who buys five of those gadgets to save 20 per cent. of your gasoline bill in hopes of cutting it out altogether.

Wrist watches come and go, but ankle watches go on forever—on street corners.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. Do the retail stores receive any free or percentage for the sale of Stamps?
A. No. The retail stores are offering their facilities as a patriotic service, just as banks, savings and loan associations, and other are doing their help in the sale of Defense Bonds.

Q. How can I form the thrift habit necessary for me to buy many Defense Bonds now, to help the Government?
A. The easiest way is to instruct your employer or banker to hold back a small fraction of your salary or other income. Even 10 cents a day and a dollar on your birthday will mount up to $37.50, the purchase price of a $50 Defense Bond. Bigger savings buy bigger bonds.

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps now are on sale at retail stores.

The Almanac Says the Weather This Week On...

TODAY, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, WILL BE STORMY. TOMORROW, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, WILL BE UNSETTLED. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, WILL BE COOL. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, WILL BE BLUSTERY. SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20, WILL BE CLEAR. MONDAY, OCTOBER 21, WILL BE CLEAR. TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, WILL BE COOL. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, WILL BE CHANGEABLE.

... But Don't Blame Us If the Almanac Is Wrong

Well, brother Jim (Lieut. James F. Coleman, Public Relations, S. E. A. C. T. C., Austin Hall, Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala.) was a visitor in our office all last week. But the word visit or didn't mean a thing to him. It being the first of the month and his exchequer in pretty bad shape, we put him back into harness for a spell. He was like an old fire horse at the sound of a fire alarm—ready and a-rarin' to go.

He even fed the presses for a while and got some of his home ink under his finger nails and we sat up late at nights figuring out angles to continue giving our subscribers the best newspaper in the state of Georgia. (We got a wall covered with documentary evidence that we publish one of the best in the state now, but we haven't yet convinced our credit and pretty trophies are legal tender.)

Dinner-on-the-ground—Had "dinner-on-the-ground" at the Statesboro Primitive church last Thursday noon. They have a new system of serving their "dinner-on-the-ground."

It used to be that every member and friend of members brought something of everything—chicken, fifteen kinds of cakes, as many kinds of pies, salads, pickles, preserves, macaroni, chicken dressing and a hundred other foods found nowhere but on "dinner-on-the-ground."

It used to be that after the morning preaching the lady members would get their baskets, shoeboxes, old-fashioned tin or bound hump-d-back trunks, suit boxes—all filled with food and covered with fringed edged spotless linen table covers and spread the food covered with crumbs, a pie crusty, a gizzard and wings left on the chicken platter... And a reluctant returning to the church house for the afternoon meal... A preaching head caught up and eyes focused in spirit and attention... But not so at the Statesboro Primitive church last week. A committee named Committee member instructs each member on what to cook and bring to the church. Instructions carried out. Morning service over. Visitors come out to find roped-off lanes down which they were beginning for the children.

Green, such as turnip greens, spinach, kale, or mustard greens. And a bench to sit on. A steel drum into which to throw your paper plate and fork. Ready for the afternoon services... One preacher says: "Don't like the idea... getting too new-fangled for me. Me—give me the old-time way... like the Old-Time Religion... it's good enough for me."

We Got a Reader! We're happy. A columnist has a hard row at best. He can count sure on one reader—the proof reader who doesn't like his stuff reading anyway. Well, we have another reader—Abe Evans, bless him. He stops us every week and tells us how much he enjoys reading our "Uneasy Chair." He can even remember some of the stuff we write and that's the real test.

INCOME SITUATION Consumer demand for farm products is increasing less rapidly now than in the first eight months of this year, the United States Department of Agriculture reports. But prospects for farm prices and income continue above 1940, and total income from marketing of farm products is expected to reach $10,000,000,000 this year, Cash income from marketing in 1940 totaled $8,354,000,000. The department points out, however, that part of this gain is being offset by higher prices of goods and services bought by farmers.

FIGHT THE WEevil The boll weevil helped himself generously to the cotton of Georgia farmers this year, and this makes it imperative that a real fight be made against him the coming years.

There is another ship on the runway. There are several coming down, and live traffic cop with binoculars and finds a as close enough to endanger the reporting plane. He snaps back, "That's the pilot which runway to use and says, 'Go ahead.' Soundlessly, it seems in the closed tower—the ship taxis instant, and then slips into the air.

midair, traffic patterns have been laid out at all stations and airplanes must observe stop and go signals and stay "on the right side of the road"... Also they must beam, that invisible highway of sound which runs wide and straight to a good instrument landing.

Control towers usually surmount compact operation buildings. They are high enough to dominate the fields and surrounding countryside, and beneath them all flying is enacted in miniature. To complete the illusion, most control towers are almost sound-proof. A plane slips out from the hangar line and cross the warm-ups into the control tower seeking for takeoff directions. A man in the tower scans the air with binoculars and finds a as close enough to endanger the reporting plane. He snaps back, "That's the pilot which runway to use and says, 'Go ahead.' Soundlessly, it seems in the closed tower—the ship taxis instant, and then slips into the air.

Family Health Chat

PELLAGRA

Pellagra is a disease that is caused by constantly eating food that does not supply all the elements needed by the body. Dr. Joseph Goldberger, of the United States Public Health Service, who did a great deal of research on the cause and cure of the disease, called the missing substance the pellagra preventive factor. Other workers have called it the pellagra preventive vitamin. It has been suggested, also, that more than one substance in food may be involved in the prevention and cure of pellagra.

SYMPTOMS: In its acute form pellagra is rather easily recognized by such symptoms as a strange kind of reddening and scaling of the skin, loss of appetite, indigestion, diarrhea, soreness of the mouth and tongue, nervousness, low spirits, and more or less general weakness.

There is a subacute form of the disease, however, in which constant fatigue, poor appetite, and general debility are sometimes the only symptoms. This may be even more serious than the acute form, since it is not so easy to recognize.

While people who have any or all of these symptoms may not have pellagra, they are in a poor condition of health and should see a doctor.

NOT CONTAGIOUS: Pellagra is not contagious and cannot be given to one person by another. There is no need to keep the people who have this disease away from others.

PREVENTION AND TREATMENT: Lean meat, milk, green vegetables, and eggs supply the food substances which protect against pellagra, and people who eat enough of them do not get this disease.

When people already have pellagra, in most instances these foods alone will not cure it. Medicine has no value, either, except to make the patient more comfortable. The treatment must be prescribed by the doctor. Usually the diet of the individual, including large quantities of dried powdered yeast. The United States Public Health Service recommends at least one half to one ounce of pure powdered yeast each day, or two teaspoonfuls three to six times a day.

PROTECTION: To protect yourself and your children against pellagra, use these foods along with the food you usually eat.

Every Day: Milk—at least two cupfuls for the grown-ups and three cupfuls for the children.

Green, such as turnip greens, spinach, kale, or mustard greens. And a bench to sit on. A steel drum into which to throw your paper plate and fork. Ready for the afternoon services... One preacher says: "Don't like the idea... getting too new-fangled for me. Me—give me the old-time way... like the Old-Time Religion... it's good enough for me."

... WITH THE EAGLE

That hole is still in front of the EAST STANDS and those lights are still out . . . and the grass is still uncut. 'Bout the last game it'll be o.k. for by that time the crowds will have trampled it down.

The boys really pulled one out of the fire last Friday night when they eked out a 7-0 win over Glennville. And Glennville defeated Reidsville, 20 to 0. The Blue Devils play Reidsville here tomorrow night. But don't let that comparative score get your hopes too high . . . it doesn't mean a thing.

The wind blew up a bit of 1941 Fall weather Friday night.

It seemed to us that if that big back, Quinton Kennedy, for Glennville, had been given the ball more the score would have been something else. As we see it, if he had been given the ball on that last play of the game the score would have been something else. Instead, Moody elected to pass. (This comes under the heading of "The Next Thursday Quarterback.") The man on the sideline can always tell the quarterback how he should have played the game.) It just looked that way to us.

We were scared all the game that Coach Tyson might be tempted to run ("Bo") Hagan in the game last Friday night. Bo is stove up with a bad knee and we were glad when the whistle blew and Bo hadn't gotten in. Coach Tyson likes his boys too well to subject them to such risks under such circumstances.

The crowd was off a bit from the Metter game. The receipts showed about $225 against $385 the Friday night before. But then that bunch of Metter fans swelled the attendance and the boys in Blue had to compete with the Georgia-Mississippi game in Athens last Friday night. Old Georgia fans by the dozens left to see that 14-14 fracas. Lehman Franklin and Roger Holland flew up. Many made it a football week-end; Georgia-Mississippi Friday night and Tech-Notre Dame in Atlanta Saturday afternoon.

Six more games to be played here on our home field. The only game the Blue Devils play away from home is the one with Millen Thanksgiving.

Marion Carpenter pulled a new trick out of the bag for the half at the Glennville game. We're sorta dumb, reckon. Couldn't quite figure it out. Might have been the propeller of that bomber the Blue Devils turned loose on the second half whistle. The whole band lined up in a straight line and began turning like a huge windmill or propeller. Next time write it out for us, Marion.

Blue Devils Stretch Winning Streak to Three Straight; Defeat Glennville Friday Night, 7 to 0

For five minutes last Friday night the Statesboro High school Blue Devils played a wound-up brand of football to net them the only score of the game against Glennville to win, 7 to 0.

Receiving the ball on his own 20-yard line from the kickoff at the beginning of the last half, Henry Pike tore out upfield forty-nine yards to Glennville's 31. In the huddle . . . Billy Tillman over the ball . . . the snap . . . and Harold Hagan puts fifteen yards and first down in the book. Huddle . . . snap . . . and A. B. Anderson contributes five yards over left tackle. Huddle . . . snap . . . and Emerson Brown adds in his four yards. And Harold Hagan makes a first down. On the next play Harold Hagan closed the book with a touchdown and Emerson totaled it up to seven points and that was the ball game.

It was all done before Glennville realized that there was a football game in progress and the fans hardly recognized the players as their own Blue Devils.

The first half was played principally in Statesboro's territory with the huskies from Glennville gaining at will over and through the line, only to lose the ball on fumbles or intercepted passes.

Glennville penalized 5 yards for offside. Kennedy attempted a pass which was no good. One yard was made on third down and Moody kicked out of bounds on own 30-yard line.

On the first play, a Blue Devil fumbled. And on the play several men were hurt. Play resumed with Edwin Brannen substituting for John Martin for Glennville. Hagan made no gain. Hagan kicked a third down to Moody who takes it on his own 40-yard line and makes 5 yards. Carter makes nothing, finding a stone wall built in front of him. Kennedy finds the same stone wall for no gain and the half ends with the score: Statesboro, 0; Glennville, 0.

Returning to the field, an inspired bunch of Blue Devils bewildered the Glennville eleven with receiving the kickoff on their own 20, rushed the ball across the field to Glennville's 31. Then Pike rushed around end for 15 yards and first down. A. B. Anderson made 5 yards over left tackle and Emerson Brown added 4 yards. Harold Hagan made it first down and on the next play went over for the score. Emerson Brown made the extra point.

This precaution, he says, gets the fall pig crop off to a strong start and helps reduce the estimated $2,500,000 annual loss to southern farmers from this costly internal parasite.

"If sows about to farrow are placed on a new pasture with five-foot bare strip around the edge and a thirty-foot bare strip at one end for shelter, feed hoppers, waterers, creep with self-feeders for pigs, and feeding pen for the sow—the suckling pigs, most vulnerable to attack, can escape serious infection."

"Effectiveness of this arrangement results from the fact that kidney worms eggs, eliminated by the thousands in urine of infested sows must have shade, moisture, and reasonably high temperatures to hatch worms that develop to an infective stage. Because sows generally urinate close to where the pigs are feeding, most of the eggs will be discharged out in the open and killed by sunlight, heat, and drying if feeders are located on the bare areas."

Otherwise, pigs running on pasture or in hog lot with sows become infested by swallowing worms on contaminated forage, when they root in litter containing worms, or when they lie down where worms are present.

According to an announcement made this week in Washington by order of Secretary of the Navy Knox, "All men now enlisting in the naval reserve will be retained on active duty throughout the period of the national emergency, but they will be released to inactive duty as soon after the emergency as their services can be spared, regardless of the length of time remaining in their enlistment."

Enlistment in the U. S. School Boy Patrol Set Up

Last week twelve boys were named as members of the school boy patrol division of the Georgia State Patrol.

The selection of the boys followed the installation of the school boy patrol in the Statesboro schools Wednesday of last week under the sponsorship of the local junior chamber of commerce.

The school boy patrolmen are Kenneth Smith, Bill Tyson, James Groover, Harry L. Skinner, Rupert Riggs, Henry Pike, Tom Groover, Harold Hagin, Waldo Martin, Bernard Morris, Carl Deal, Henry Pike was made captain of the patrol.

The patrol was formed under the direction of State Trooper E. E. Keel.

Trooper Keel, who was here on Wednesday of last week, stated that Hal Macon, of the Georgia theater, is giving each boy patrolman a free ticket to the Georgia theater once a week. Each year a trip to Washington, D. C. is sponsored and it is understood, to complete this year's project, up at the local school. The fund will operate as follows: When a student has a birthday, every other student in school contributes 1 cent to the trip fund for the boy patrolmen. It is expected that 300 students will contribute $300, which will be enough to send all twelve Statesboro school boy patrolmen to Washington.

Trooper Keel stated that two school boy patrolmen will ride each school bus to control the students getting on and off the bus. He pointed out that the Georgia law requires all motorists to stop when a school bus is standing still and waits for the bus to move before passing. This means when meeting or overtaking a school bus. The school boy patrolman on duty at designated street intersections will co-operate with the city police.

The new boy patrolmen ask the cooperation of the citizens of Statesboro as well as the students of the school.
